Breedendam Admiraalsloop now in the online auction. everyone can bid until 19 October 2026.

Breedendam Admiralsloop for Relaxing Days

What kind of boat is the Breedendam Admiralsloop?

This 1999 Breedendam Admiralsloop is a classic wooden launch measuring 8 metres in length and 2 metres in beam. She was built by Breedendam to a design by Van Burkom and has the characteristic, elegant lines associated with this model. The mahogany construction gives her a warm appearance, while the spacious cockpit provides plenty of room for relaxing days on the water.

The boat comes from her first owner, who had her built in the spring of 1999. Since then, she has been used for day trips, weekends on board and recreational boating on inland waterways, canals, ditches, lakes, ponds and rivers. The launch has clearly been used and cared for with attention. At the same time, there are minor signs of use that show she is not new.

What is the layout on board?

The Breedendam has a spacious open cockpit with a steering wheel on the outside. Steering is operated via a single rudder. The cockpit is equipped with outdoor cushions, a cockpit table and a cockpit tent. A sprayhood is also included. Fenders and lines are available for protection alongside. The teak deck, swimming ladder and the anchor with chain and line make her suitable for relaxing trips and staying on board.

The cabin contains two fixed berths. This makes it possible to spend a night or a weekend on the water. A cooking appliance is available on board. The galley equipment is included, as are all the interior and exterior cushions. In addition, there are two covers. One cover protects the cockpit, while the other can cover the entire boat.

What engine does the boat have?

This Admiralsloop is equipped with a 1999 Yanmar diesel engine. The three-cylinder inboard engine delivers 27 hp and has approximately 1,006 operating hours. It is electrically started and the engine is operational. On board, there is a fuel gauge, oil-pressure gauge, temperature gauge and tachometer. The fuel tank has a capacity of 40 litres.

The engine has been maintained in recent years, and the available documentation from the past years forms part of the information provided with the boat. The most recent known service in which the boat was taken out of the water took place in 2026. The last antifouling treatment was carried out in 2025. There are two batteries on board. No bow thruster is fitted.

What condition is the Breedendam in?

The boat is in good used condition. According to the seller, the paintwork and engine have been carefully maintained. No specific defects have been reported, although there are minor visible items consistent with the boat's age and use. During the viewing day, it is important that you assess the overall condition of the woodwork, paintwork, interior, upholstery and technical systems yourself.

The launch is stored under cover in a marina in the Leiden area. The combination of a wooden hull, spacious cockpit and a cabin with berths makes her suitable for people who appreciate atmosphere and peaceful stays on the water.

What is this launch suitable for?

The Breedendam is intended for relaxed day trips with family or friends, as well as for short stays on board. Her draught is approximately 50 centimetres, making her suitable for many Dutch inland waterways. Her handling characteristics are geared towards comfortable launch cruising, with the spacious cockpit at the centre.

The current owner describes beautiful trips on the Kagerplassen and outings to Leiden to do the weekly shopping at the market on Saturday mornings. The boat has also been used for overnight stays, with the boat lying in the middle of nature the following morning. This gives a good impression of what this launch is designed for: peaceful cruising, spending time outdoors together and occasionally spending the night on the water.

What is included?

The interior and exterior cushions, galley equipment and two covers remain on board upon sale. The sprayhood, cockpit table, cockpit tent, teak deck, swimming ladder, anchor with chain and line, fenders and lines are also included in the equipment. The boat does not have a tender, and no trailer is included.

What should you look out for if you want to buy this boat?

Anyone considering buying a boat should look beyond its appearance and also examine the layout, engine, equipment and maintenance history. With a wooden launch, the hull, paint layers, deck, connections and areas around the deck fittings deserve extra attention. The operation of the engine, gauges, lighting, batteries and other electrical systems can also be checked during the viewing day.

For anyone looking to buy a second-hand boat, the combination of age, signs of use and available documentation is important. The Breedendam is not a new boat, but a classic launch with a distinctive appearance, practical layout and a history as a pleasure boat owned by its first owner. If you are searching online for tips on buying a boat, a careful inspection and comparing the specifications with the actual condition are always part of making a well-informed choice.

When can you view the boat?

The boat can be viewed during the viewing day organised by Boat Auction. This is the opportunity to assess her up close, inspect the finish and equipment, and ask questions about the available information. In particular, take the time to carefully check the wooden components, interior, engine compartment and included accessories.
